VMIAC State Election Policy Tracker

Why we put this together

Our government's policies have a tangible impact on our mental health, wellbeing, and our everyday lives. Decisions made by governments shape access to mental health supports, housing, income security, social inclusion, and the broader social determinants of mental health.

At VMIAC, we believe that our community deserves access to clear, accessible, and relevant information to help them make informed decisions about issues that affect their lives.

The tracker outlines key policy announcements and relevant track records of the Victorian Labor Party, the Victorian Liberal Party, The Victorian Greens, and Victorian One Nation across a range of important policy areas. It is intended to provide an overview of each party's positions, commitments and actions, helping readers consider and compare the past performance and future promises of each party.

How we put this together

We have collated major policy announcements made by each party up until the start of early voting, alongside relevant information about each party's track record in each area covered.

This is not an exhaustive list of every policy, commitment, statement, or action made by each party. It is a snapshot of key announcements and decisions made across areas we consider particularly relevant to the lives, human rights, and wellbeing of consumers and the broader community.

This tracker is intended to be an informative resource to support informed decision-making. It does not endorse or recommend any political party. We encourage our community to explore the policies and track records of each party and consider what matters most to them to make their own informed choices.
